

BRINGING BACK
BROADWAYTM

invites you to attend the

Broadway Arts Center

Public Planning Workshop

MONDAY FEBRUARY 7, 2011

6pm – 8pm

Los Angeles Theatre, 615 S. Broadway, Los Angeles, CA 90014

Please attend this public planning workshop, and share your input as concepts are developed for a proposed mixed-use facility – The Broadway Arts Center – focused on providing affordable artists' housing, performance / exhibition space, educational facilities, commercial / retail space, parking and loading for commercial and theatrical use, and support for existing historic theatres along Broadway in downtown L.A.

The City of Los Angeles Department of Cultural Affairs and project partners have been awarded a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to develop planning studies for creating a Broadway Arts Center along historic Broadway, as part of the Bringing Back Broadway revitalization initiative.

The Broadway Arts Center will utilize the arts to promote a safe and vibrant community, create jobs, and provide opportunities for artists.

6:00-6:30pm RECEPTION / INFORMAL DISCUSSION

6:30pm REMARKS & PROJECT OVERVIEW

- Hear from lead project partners in theatre auditorium

7pm-8pm PROVIDE YOUR INPUT

Visit discussion stations set up in the lobby to provide your input on topics related to:

- affordable artist housing
- challenges and needs of the arts community and local artists Downtown L.A.
- challenges and needs related to Downtown revitalization
- ideas for uses within the overall facility
- funding partnerships / resource development and more!

Come share your ideas about what a facility like this would mean – and should provide – for the arts, artist support, economic development & revitalization along Broadway and in Downtown L.A.

We look forward to hearing from you!
